JUDO

GRAND SLAM
Paris, 2014

Marius L. VIZER
IJF President

A new sports season starts again with the Judo Grand Slam in Paris. After an eventful 2013, which saw the establishment of the new refereeing rules, these new rules have been validated and will guide us throughout the Olympic qualification process that will begin later in 2014.

The Paris tournament is an important moment for the International Judo Federation. The knowledge and expertise of the French Judo Federation, led by its president, Jean-Luc Rougé, who is also the Secretary General of our organization, allow everyone to take the way of the international competitions with strength and dynamism.

Each year the level is very high. Winning the Grand Slam in Paris or to win a medal in front the enthusiastic public of Bercy marks all judo careers.

I wish you all good luck. Both to the organizers and the participants. I ask you to continue to convey a modern and friendly image of our sport, which in recent years has reached an unprecedented level.

Jean-Luc ROUGE
President, French
Judo Federation

Dear Judo Friends,

It is with great pleasure that the French Judo Federation and its 300 organizers welcome you to the 2014 Paris Grand Slam.

Together, we will celebrate the 40th edition of this tournament, which took place for the first time in 1971 in the famous "Pierre de Coubertin" arena, the temple of judo, before moving to the Palais Omnisport at Paris Bercy in 2000.

More than 10,000 male and female fighters have participated in this great competition since its inception. The Paris Grand Slam will be the first IJF event in 2014.

In 2015 the tournament could be held on another date due to renovation of the arena; most likely in October...but a 2015 edition will certainly take place.

We count on your presence.
